Gentlemen:—At your request I have obtained in open market samples of BENSON'S CAPCINE PAIN'S Plasters and Alcock's Porous Plasters, and have submitted them to chemical analysis to determine their comparative merits as external remedies.

I find in BENSON'S CAPCINE PLASTERS valuable medical ingredients which do not exist in Alcock's Porous Plasters: hence in my opinion they are superior to those of Alcock's.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

For Dyspepsia Costiveness, Sick Headache, Chronic Diarrhœa, Jaundice, Impurity of the Blood, Fever and Ague, Malaria, and all Diseases caused by Derangement of Liver, Bowels and Kidneys.

SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED LIVER.

Bad Breath, Pain in the Side, sometimes the pain is felt under the Shoulder-blade, mistaken for Rheumatism; general loss of appetite; Bowels generally costive, sometimes alternating with lax; the head is troubled with pain, is dull and heavy, with considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of leaving undone something which ought to have been done; a slight, dry cough and flushed face is sometimes an attendant, often mistaken for consumption; the patient complains of weariness and debility; nervous, easily startled; feet cold or burning, sometimes a prickly sensation of the skin exists; spirits are low and despondent, and, although satisfied that exercise would be beneficial, yet one can hardly summon up fortitude to try it—in fact, distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred when but few of them existed, yet examination after death has shown the Liver to have been extensively deranged.

It should be used by all persons, old and young, whenever any of the above symptoms appear.

Persons Traveling or Living in Unhealthy Localities, by taking a dose occasionally to keep the Liver in healthy action, will avoid all Malaria, Bilious attacks, Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Depression of Spirits, etc. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but is no intoxicating beverage.

If You have eaten anything hard of digestion, or feel heavy after meals, or sleepless at night, take a dose and you will be relieved.

Time and Doctors' Bills will be saved by always keeping the Regulator in the House!

For, whatever the ailment may be, a thoroughly safe purgative, alterative and tonic can never be out of place. The remedy is harmless and does not interfere with business or pleasure.

IT IS PURELY VEGETABLE, And has all the power and efficacy of Calomel or Quinine, without any of the injurious after effects.

A Governor's Testimony. Simmons Liver Regulator has been in use in my family for some time, and I am satisfied it is a valuable addition to the medical science. J. GILL SHORTER, Governor of Ala.

Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Ga., says: Have derived some benefit from the use of Simmons Liver Regulator, and wish to give it a further trial.

"The only Thing that never fails to Relieve."—I have used many remedies for Dyspepsia, Liver Affection and Debility, but never have found anything to benefit me to the extent Simmons Liver Regulator has. I sent from Minnesota to Georgia for it, and would send further for such a medicine, and would advise all who are similarly affected to give it a trial as it seems the only thing that never fails to relieve. P. M. JANNEY, Minneapolis, Minn.

Dr. T. W. Mason says: From actual experience in the use of Simmons Liver Regulator in my practice I have been and am satisfied to use and prescribe it as a purgative medicine.

SELECT STORY.

ANTEDILUVIAN HISTORY.

AN ATTEMPT TO GET AT THE MEANING OF THE EARLY CHAPTERS OF GENESIS.

THE "GIANTS UPON THE EARTH."

SIGNIFICANT PASSAGES CONCERNING THE CAUSE OF GOD'S ANGER AGAINST MANKIND.

In the first chapters of Genesis the narratives of the good and the bad are mingled together in a manner somewhat embarrassing to the general reader, and the difficulty is increased by the division into chapters and verses, which division has been most bungingly performed. It would be well if the whole chapteral system were abandoned, leaving as a convenience, the present distribution into verses, but numbering them from I, continuously to the end of the respective book, marking the change of subject by the paragraph sign, as is now partially done, and noting the supposed chronology on the margin. As a matter of convenience the paragraphs might be numbered and the subject matter stated. The Bible student pays no attention to the chapters and verses. Why should the unlearned reader be stumbling over them and have the continuity of discourses and narratives broken and confused, rather than clear and complete? As there is not supposed to be or to have been any want of reverence in cutting up the Scriptures into chapters and verses in a most unscholarly fashion, there could certainly be none in such a partial restoration as would tend to bring order out of chaos and enable us to more rightly divide the Word of Truth. Any publisher or author of to-day who would divide his book into chapters and verses as the Bible has been divided, would not be tolerated among book-makers. Let the Bible be revised in this particular—discard the chapter or make it conform, long or short, to the subject matter, and the book will be read with increased intellectual delight and spiritual comfort.

This matter impressed itself forcibly upon my mind lately on an examination of the first six chapters of Genesis, in an endeavor to disentangle the double narrative of the antediluvian history—especially in connection with the meaning of the first, second and fourth verses of the sixth chapter. The third verse, as the paragraph stands, properly belongs to that beginning with the fifth verse. Up to the seventh chapter the narrative should be read as follows, to wit: For the one, the first chapter and the first three verses of the second chapter, the fifth chapter and the last fifteen verses of the sixth chapter; for the other, begin at verse fourth of chapter second, chapter third, the first twenty-four verses of chapter fourth—taking these verses, however, in this order, viz: 1, 2, 4, 5, 6, 3, 7. Thus you have, up to the time of the flood, or at least up to the days of Noah, a continuous though brief history of the Adamites and the Cainites.

THE GENERATIONS OF ADAM.

"The book of the generations of Adam," being the genealogies, ignores Cain altogether, with all his family. The temptation, the fall, the curse and the promise belong to this sad side of human history and to this vagabond and disowned son. When Adam was driven out of Paradise he went eastward, and when Cain was driven from the presence of the Lord he went still further east. Thus during the fifteen hundred years following, reaching up to the flood, the two families seem to have lived in the same Mesopotamian valley, on the waters of the Tigris and the Euphrates, and we can hardly imagine that during all these years there was not considerable intercourse between them. They had come down perhaps from the highlands of Armenia, from the province of Eden together—the Adamites on the Euphrates and the Cainites on the Tigris. On the Euphrates the Ark was builded, back towards the Garden of Eden it floated, on the highlands of Armenia it rested, and near where the human race began its eventful history, thence a second time it was launched upon the stream of time.

If we now read over the history of the Cainites as it is given we shall have several things to observe: First, that their women play an important part, and that, except Eve, who seems to have been somewhat of a Cainite herself, no other than Cainite antediluvian women are named in the Bible; second, that they were society people, building cities and living in communities; third, that they were artisans, inventors, musicians and poets; fourth, that they were artificers in brass and iron, and therefore doubtless, men of war, ready to attack and defend. Thus they had beautiful women, as their names imply; they had arts and arms; they had music and poetry; they had cities and society. On the other hand, the Adamites, so far as we are told anything about them, seem to have been altogether agriculturists, living segregated lives, having neither herds nor cattle, neither cities nor communities. At the birth of Noah, his father, in naming him, said: "This same shall comfort us concerning our work and toil of our hands, because of the ground which the Lord hath cursed." And so in the valleys of these two great rivers, grew and increased these two so nearly related, and yet, in some respects, so widely separated families, for fifteen hundred years and until the flood of waters came.

THE FLOOD.

Now then, did the intermarriage of these Adamite plow-boys with the gay girls of the Cainite cities cause such a corruption of manners and morals upon the earth as to make it necessary that all flesh of both families should be cut off by the flood; and of the millions which these fifteen hundred years had brought forth only eight souls should be preserved? Was it because these two families entered into a closer relationship than that of mere descent, that it repented the Lord that he had made man on the earth and that it should be declared of him that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually? And that too, now, in the ultimate conclusion of the whole matter, when after the destruction was complete and Noah and his family were alone upon the earth and were offering thanksgiving for their preservation and the sweet savor of the oblation ascended towards heaven: "The Lord said in his heart, I will not again curse the ground any more for man's sake; for the imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth." The evil, then, was not eliminated, the passions were not weakened the appetites were not overcome. Man was no better than he had been, but some disturbing element had been destroyed. To put the question, whether that disturbing element was the intermarriage of the Adamite and Cainite, is, it seems to me, to answer it in the negative, even if we assume that the deluge was universal. There must have been some more special and overwhelming wickedness and violence than we can conceive to have been possible between the descendants of Adam!

In furtherance of this view of the case it should be observed that the moving cause of the difficulty seems to have been marriage and that marriage or system of marriages, one out of which violence and strife grew. It does not seem reasonable or possible that any such strife and violence could have grown out of the marriages of men and women, for marriage between men and women was lawful, was God's ordinance and therfore in obedience to his commands. The cause being marriage and not reasonably a marriage between men and women, even though they might have been Adamites and Cainites, we must look for some other element of discord.

THE NEPHILIM.

Were there on the earth any beings other than the offspring of Adam and Eve? In answer to that question let us read the first, second and fourth verses of the sixth chapter of Genesis:

"And it came to pass, when men began to multiply on the face of the earth, and daughters were born unto them, that the sons of God saw the daughters of men that they were fair; and they took them wives of all which they chose. There were giants in the earth in those days, and also after that, when the sons of God came in unto the daughters of men, and they bore children unto them, the same became mighty men which were of old, men of renown."

Here then we have, mingling in this compound which we call humanity first, the daughters of men; second, the sons of God; third, the Nephilim, the giants:

The daughters of men are no other than the descendants of Adam, whether direct or by the line of Cain, for we are to remember that all of both lines were destroyed, except the family of Noah, who were preserved on account of the personal righteousness of Noah. We are also to observe that the word used by the writer of the original for God is "Elohim" and therefore being a proper name of the Deity, these male persons are not to be supposed to be or considered to be sons of chiefs or princes, but really and actually what they are called, and are some intelligent created beings higher than man and distinct from him. And, finally, that the Nephilim are properly "Fallen ones" and not giants, if the word is taken as relating simply to stature, and that the word translated "mighty men," "men of renown," is gibborim, and that the gibborim are the offspring of the marriages of the sons of God with the daughters of men.

Who were the Nephilim? The word is used, in my judgment, to designate those renegade, degraded, fallen angels or beings, elsewhere styled the sons of God. As if we were to say, "The sons of God married the daughters of Adam," and in answer to a word of incredulity the further remark is made, "There were fallen ones, Nephilim, in those days." Fallen, renegade sons of God, giants, perhaps, in wickedness, who by violence seized and took or by fraud seduced away the wives and daughters of the sons of Adam including the descendants of Cain, and styled their enforced intercourse marriage. Here, then, we have ample material for all the conditions of this great problem. Let us construct the Biblical passage by its obvious meaning and it will stand thus:

"And it came to pass, when the sons of Adam began to multiply on the face of the earth and daughters were born unto them, that the sons of God—there were fallen ones on the earth in those days—saw that the daughters of the sons of Adam were fair, and they took them wives of such of them as they chose. And after these marriages when these sons of God came in unto their wives and they bare children unto them, the same became gibborim, mighty men which were of old, men of renown."

THE SONS OF GOD.

It seems too plain for argument that these Nephilim, whoever and whatever they were, were the cause of this disturbance. Were they angels, were they other created beings, higher or lower, from heavenly places? or were they spirits cast out of heaven and who escaped with Satan from hell? The designation seems to be of an Order. In Job, those who come in regular course of duty to present themselves before the Lord are the sons of God, and Satan came also in the midst of them. In antediluvian times the phrase uniformly used in speaking of these earth-visiting heavenly intelligences is "Sons of God." Afterwards, as a mere messenger, "the angel of the Lord appeared unto Hagar," and under the same designation there are other similar manifestations. It is not until Second Samuel, 14, 20, only about 1,000 years before Christ, that we have the angel in a higher character than a messenger. There it is said: "And my lord is wise, according to the wisdom of an angel of God, to know all things that are in the earth;" unless we say that Job, 4, 18, is older, where it is said as a marginal reading: "Behold, He put no trust in His servants, nor in His angels in whom he put light."

Wherever an angel has appeared or is spoken of it is as a male and in the form of a man, and in the early history of the race the frequent and friendly appearance of angels as messengers, assistants and guides seems to be almost a matter of course. No surprise is expressed at any manifestations or at any occurrence in which they play a part as if it were unusual or unexpected. Did they always come as God's messengers and only when sent, or were they wise to know all things that were in the earth, and did they volunteer to assist and counsel? Were they free to roam through the new creation, and, roaming at will, like as Adam, liable to fall? It may be held so and that after the flood this liberty was restrained to special messages. If, then, these angels, fallen from their first estate, coming to the earth as sight-seers or as messengers, seduced by the beauty of women, married them and remained on earth, we can faintly imagine how these immortal beings might and would introduce infinite wretchedness, change the nature of all flesh and corrupt and make the imagination of the thoughts of man's heart only evil continually. Hopes of earthly immortality, claims of heavenly descent, boasts of spiritual superiority, dissatisfaction with mere human husbands, exciting all the very worst passions of a nature already fallen, would produce a condition of things well described by the sacred writer. And it was such a state of semi-immortality, of moral degredation and of family discord, running, no doubt, through the whole human race, that made the absolute destruction of the offspring of these unnatural marriages a necessity for the restoration of the descendants of Adam, and even then with some evil imaginings remaining. ### Where to Gun and Fish.

Perhaps the most practical, convenient and complete publication on gunning and fishing and their various auxiliaries ever printed, is the one recently issued by the Passenger Department of the Philapelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad company. Practical in that it not only informs in concise terms where the several kinds of game fish and birds may be sought to best advantage, but how to reach such places in the cheapest and most expeditious manner including not only the rail but, where necessary, the stage and wagon lines with cost.

Convenient in being reduced to pocket size, and the arrangement of the matter under different heads, so that the reader in search of advice regarding a certain fish, duck, or bird will find it in a special chapter describing its haunts, habits and peculiarities.

Complete from the fact that it takes in the entire peninsula, which contains Delaware and the eastern shores of Maryland and Virginia, from the Chesapeake to the Atlantic coast. The kinds and cost of bait, proper and legal seasons of the year, cost of wagon and other transportation, location of principal hotels and boarding houses, and all information, such as those unacquainted with the country who would like to know before leaving home for such a trip, have been carefully examined into and noted.

The book is profusely illustrated with cuts of fish and birds, and also contains a splendid map of this territory.

Copies may be had free by addressing Mr. J. R. Wood. General Passenger Agent, Philadelphia.

Can't Get Rid of 'Em.

Detroit Free Press.

A Woodward avenue business man, who had been greatly annoyed by children calling and asking for cards, hung up a sign in the store reading: "We have no cards to give away." It wasn't two hours before a little girl came in and said:

"Please, mister, how many cards will you sell for a nickel?"

Then the man tore down the card and replaced it by one reading: "No cards here." This was a bluff for three or four children, but one soon dropped in who read the sign and inquired:

"I suppose keep 'em all down at the other store, don't you?"

Some one then suggested that the word "here" be rubbed out to make the sign cover the whole case. This was done yesterday, and it wasn't ten minutes before a man turned in from the street and said:

"Well that's sensible."

"What's that?"

"Why getting married without making a great row over it. I see you didn't send out any cards, and I admire your judgement. Marry a widow did you?"

The sign was at once pulled down, and the beleagured man began work on one reading: "Inquire next door." He thinks that will hit the case plump center, but it won't be two hours before some one will come along and call out:

"If this store is for rent what's the use of inquiring next door? What's the price, and what repairs will the landlord make?"

A New Use for Oyster Shells.

A new use has been discovered for oyster shells. For years they have been used for the manufacture of lime as manure, for decorative purposes, and in the preparation of a cheap imitation of marble; but it is now found that they cannot be better utilized than by being thrown in quantities into the sea where they make the best possible foundation for new oyster beds. In July and August next many ship loads of these empty shells will be sunk by English and French oyster farmers in various places suitable for the purpose, and a few healthy living oysters will then be dropped upon the same spots. Experiments have proved that under such conditions the bivalves will shortly multiply to an almost incredible extent, and in so brief a period as two years each empty shell will have from thirty to forty young oysters attached to it. The new generation can then be removed to make room for more, and fattened for market in specially constructed tanks.

Some twenty-five years ago, a lady, now living in Salem, N. C., then a little girl, fell into a thorn bush and stuck a thorn into her knee. A physician in extracting the thorn broke it off, leaving about a half an inch of the sharp point remaining, being unable to find it. The wound healed, and nothing more was thought of the piece of thorn that remained, as it gave no inconvenience. The other night, however, the lady discovered a bluish looking pimple on one of her ankles, which soon became painful. She applied a poultice to the place, and, on removing it the next day, was astonished to find the piece of thorn.

Cincinnati has returned to beer, and it is safe to say finds it "more fillin' and nearer to the spot" than the drama.

A Prophecy that was Fulfilled.

An old woman who passed in the country for a sorceress, once dwelt in an humble cabin in the forestof St. Germain. One evening, while the rain fell in torrents, she heard a knocking at her door, which, hastily opening, she saw a cavalier, who craved hospitality.

Putting his horse in a shed close at hand, she bade him enter, and by the light of a smoky lamp observed that her guest was a young gentleman. His person bespoke youth; his dress was that of a man of rank.

The old woman asked the youth if he would have something to eat.

A stomach of sixteen years is like a heart of the same age, eager and easily pleased. The young man assented, and a bit of cheese and a half a loaf of bread were brought from the cupboard, all the provisions the old woman had.

"I have not much," she said to him. "This is all I have to offer a chance visitor after paying taxes and the excise on salt, without taking into account the neighboring country people, who call me a sorceress and disciple of the devil, in order that they may steal with an easy conscience the products of my small garden."

"By my soul!" said the stranger, "If I were King of France, I would suppress these imposts and thus benefit the people."

"God hear you," responded the old woman.

At these words the young man approached the table to partake of his frugal supper, but at the same instant another rap at the door arrested his attention.

The old woman opened it, and saw another cavalier drenched with rain, who also asked shelter, which was granted him, and who, having entered, she saw that he, too, was a young man and a noble.

"What! you here, Henry?" said the newcomer.

"Yes, Henry," said the other.

Each called the other Henry, and the old woman learned from their conversation that they belonged to a numerous party of huntsmen led by King Charles IX., and which the storm had dispersed.

"Old woman," said the second comer, "hast thou not something more to give?"

"Nothing," replied she.

"Then," said he, "we will divide this."

The first Henry made a wry face, but obsesving the resolute eye and sinewy presence of the other said, in a voice of chagrin, "Divide it, then," and there was behind the words this thought, which he did not venture to express; "Divide, but deal fairly."

They seated themselves opposite each other, and already one had cut the bread with his dagger when a third knock was heard at the door. The rencounter was singular; this was another young man, another nobleman, another Henry. The old woman looked on in grim surprise. The first wished to conceal the bread and cheese, the second placed it on the table and laid his sword beside it; the third Henry smiled.

"You do not wish, then said he, "to share your supper with me. I am very tired and equally hungry."

"The supper, by rights belongs to the first comer," said the first Henry.

"The supper, said the second, "belongs to the one who can best defend it."

The third Henry colored with anger and said fiercely:

"Perhaps it belongs to the one who conquers it."

These words were hardly spoken when the first Henry drew his poignard, the other two their swords. As they were about to come to blows, a fourth knock was heard and a fourth young man—a fourth nobleman—a fourth

THE COLUMBIAN.

G. E. Elwell, J. K. Bittenbender, } Editors.

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

FRIDAY, JUNE 8, 1883.

De. B. Randolph Keim who was not permitted to accept the appointment of Civil service commissioner because of the great pressure brought to bear against him, is going to leave Reading because he thinks he is not appreciated there. His friends did not make the stand for him that he expected. Goodness! What will Reading do without him?

Mrs. Phil Thompson, whose husband recently shot Walter H. Davis and was acquitted by the jury, says that Davis was an innocent man. The charge for which Thompson shot him was utterly false, and she lays the blame of all the trouble on Jessie Buckner, the lady who was with her at the St. Clair Hotel Cincinnati, when the alleged intimacy is said to have taken place.

The Republicans of Ohio appear to have recovered from their fright sufficiently to conclude that it was best to go along and hold their convention at the time already fixed without adopting the dallying and preposterous policy of waiting to see what the Supreme Court may do in a test case on the liquor question. It is not probabie, however, that the Republicans of the country can be driven in any great degree of confidence in the success of their party at the coming fall election by the policy of brag which has been so suddenly adopted in the State. The bad management of the past two years has been so fatal that with many inherent weaknesses in the Democratic party it has discovered a decided victory and now, with united ranks, looks forward with confidence to the next election. Judging by the present condition of affairs another year or two of Foster and his kind would leave nothing of the Republican party worth quarreling over.—Phila. Times.

Death on the Brooklyn Bridge.

On Thursday afternoon of last week a panic was created on the big Brooklyn bridge, which resulted in the death of a number of persons. The trouble occurred when a woman fell down the wooden steps at the end of the New York approach As she lost her footing another woman screamed, and the throng behind crowded forward so rapidly that those at the top of the steps were pushed over and fell in a heap. Those following in turn pushed over and in a moment the narrow stairway was choked with human beings, piled one on the top of the other, who were being crushed to death. The rush on the bridge was stopped by a military company that happened to be passing that way.

Close of the Legislature.

The senate began its closing work on Friday oy discharging all standing committees. The bills prohibiting political assessments, fixing salaries in counties of over 50,000 inhabitants, abolishing the contract system in prisons providing payment for coal mined, re-establishing the Allegheny salary board, requiring goods made by convict labor to be branded, providing for gauging petroleum in pipe lines, to prevent obstruction or pollution of navigable streams, and providing for the destruction of wolves and wild cats passed finally. Senators McCracken, Boggs and Wolverton and Shearer were named to be present at the counting of the vote for auditor general and state treasurer. Discussion on the bill ceding the Western Penitentiary grounds to Allegheny city for park purposes occupied the remainder of the session. At the afternoon session the bill was passed. The conference committee on the judicial apportionment reported its disagreement. The report of the conference committee on the general appropriation bill was agreed to. At the evening session the conference committee on legislative apportionment reported its disagreement. The vote agreeing to the conference report on the general appropriation bill was reconsidered. A number of other bills passed finally and the last evening session adjourned.

The house began early and worked late. The effort was successful, and before midnight the calender was entirely cleared. The bill giving preference to wages of servant girls, washer women, clerks and others out of insolvent sales was among those passed finally. The conference report on the Danville insane hospital was agreed to. Other senate bills were considered in order, and thus the end was reached. The greater part of the night session was spent in waiting for conference reports.

An Imperial Executioner.

KRAUTS, THE MILD-MANNERED GERMAN HEADSMAN, AND HIS WORK.

Berlin Letter to Chicago News.

You probably know that, in Berlin, when they wish to deprive a criminal of his life they cut him in two at the neck. The executioner that wields the sharp axe is called upon to exercise his functions on an average about once a month. His name is Krauts, a mild-faced old fellow, with a soft, genuine voice, a dandy manner, and white hands, and on these occasions he usually smokes a cigarette. He has four assistants, a quartette of cruel, hard-looking men, whose duty is to strip the victim. In the case under notice the culprit was suffering the extreme penalty of the law for no less a crime than the murder of his wife and two children. When he had been stripped to the undershirt, the collar of which was cut down to the level of his shoulders, his feet pinioned, and his hands tied behind him, he was led out and his head placed upon the block.

In the meantime Krauts, the executioner, had stood among the few spectators of the scene, quietly puffing his cigarette, and without anything in his demeanor indicative of his office. When the platform was reached he threw aside his cigarette, grasped his axe in his white, sinewy hands, gave it a swing upward, and struck with a force sufficient to detach the head from the body instantly. The remains are covered with black cloth, and the witnesses, having signed their names, were escorted out of the jail. I have seen many executions by hanging, and a number by ball and shot, and have witnessed one or two victims being keel-hauled, but it seems to me that decapitation must be the most brutal—certainly is the most hideous to contemplate.

An Extra Session Called.

On Wednesday morning Governor Pattison issued a call for an extra session of the legislature for the purpose of apportioning the state into congressional, legislative and judicial districts, the session to begin on Thursday, June 7th, at 12 o'clock, noon. The Governor says:

The right of the people to fair, just and lawful representation in the legislative councils of the state and union is secured by the constitution and must not be denied. The importance of the right must not be overestimated. It is the essential principle of our form of government. It underlies all our political rights. It is to be jealously guarded, carefully preserved and faithfully carried out.

The time is peculiarly fitting for the passage of bills to secure a fair, just, equitable and non partisan apportionment of the state. The two houses of the assembly are composed of different affiliations. A greater degree of fairness is to be expected from such a condition of the legislative body than if it was dominated in both branches by majorities of the same party convictions. Each house will prove a check upon the other in any attempt to obtain unfair advantages. Mutual concession and a spirit of conciliation ought to result in an adjustment of the differences of the two houses and the prompt passage of the bills, fair in spirit, giving just representation to the people in all sections of the state.

What are the Mormons Driving At.

The Mormons who come from foreign countries to our shores are by no means the most learned or intellectual persons in the world, yet they generally have property great or small. It is this property which is considered an attraction in the eyes of the managers at Salt Lake. An extraordinary exception is now reported in the case of a lot of alleged Mormon paupers from Switzerland. What the Mormon Church wants with paupers is a puzzle. Perhaps these may be an exceptionally thrifty lot of paupers, but that is hardly likely. The Mormon Church is pre-eminently one whose strength lies in its wealth and in the way the wealth is administered. The steady growth of this Church by additions from abroad has been phenomenal But if it is now looking for new members among people who are destitute of worldly possessions, the inference is that the missionaries have come to the end of their possibilities in roping in the better class of foreigners. The Mormons are desperately in earnest, and the Christian people of this country are hardly vigilant enough in taking measures to counteract their vicious influence. They are sending settlers in every direction in the far West. Some of these days we may wake up to the awful fact that these enthusiasts have secured the balance of power in the whole Rocky Mountain region and throughout the Pacific coast. They are sly as they are sinful, and will bear watching.

Pensions of Ex-Soldiers.

The amount of money being paid out by the Pension Bureau to ex-soldiers now upon the pension rolls, is rapidly increasing, and last month the large sum of ten million dollars was required to pay the nation's crippled wards. The amount appropriated by Congress for the next fiscal year is one hundred million dollars, but with the increase of monthly drafts upon the Treasury from pension cases, the appropriation would not be sufficient. However a large part of the sum paid out last month was for arrears due on cases just adjudicated and all of this class will be out of the way within a few months, and the monthly payments settle down to its proper amount. It is Commissioner Dudley's plan to be able to say, on the first of July, that so far as his office is concerned, all cases filed prior to the expiration of the arrears act, have been adjudicated, and if any are still not disposed of at the time the fault will be with the Surgeon General of the Army. In that event it is expected that the appropriation for the present year will be sufficient to pay all claims now pending, and the work of the office be very much simplified

ITEMS.

Considerable interest is manifested by the republicans in the threat of the colored people to hold a separate convention. They have been so neglected by the republicans, who profess to be their friends, that they now propose to act for themselves. Fred Douglass is at the head of the movement. A convention is called for September.

The anti-discrimination and free pipe bills were passed almost simultaneously on Friday, after a struggle of fourteen years. The free pipe bill passed finally by a vote of 107 yeas to 7 nays. The Senate unanimously concurred in the free pipe amendments. Forty-three senators voted for the anti discrimination bill on final passage, and only two voted against it. The house concurred by a vote of 148 to 7. The names of the opposing are as follows: Brosius and Snaden, of Lancaster; Bierer, of Westmorland; Lafferty, of Allegheny; La Touche, of Lackawanna; Rober, of Blair; and S. N. Mitchell, of Susquehanna.

A fair estimate of the total number of railroad accidents may be made from the reports as given by the New Jersey railroads. The roads in that state are required by law to make a yearly return to the Secretary of State of all accidents. From 1869 to 1881 inclusive, thirteen years, there were 1,902 fatal accidents. The most of these occurred in cities and towns through which, the roads pass: and were the cause of incomplete system of gates and crossings. Some action ought to be taken to have the laws rigidly enforced relating to cars running through cities and towns. The deaths in New Jersey alone amount to 3 per week.

Postmaster General Gresham on Saturday issued an order directing postmasters at first and second class offices to hereafter give personal attention to business and not to absent themselves without authority granted upon written application to the department. Judge Gresham said his reason for making such a rule was owing to the number of defalcations that had been brought to his notice by Inspectors of the Post Office Department. Investigation showed that the postmasters in most cases where financial difficulties had arisen were in the habit of trusting too implicitly to their deputies. Politics was at the bottom of the trouble, but under the new order no postmaster that disobeyed the instructions would have an opportunity to repeat his offense. There was no necessity for postmasters to run away from their business to work up a political boom for any one. "And while at the head of the Post Office department," said Judge Gresham, "I shall put my foot down against such practices."

The Post Office Department is making arrangements for the postal note, a new style of money order for all sums less than five dollars. On the left of the blanks are columns for the years, months and days of the month, and on the other side similar columns headed dollars, dimes and cents. In issuing them the clerk, instead of using a pen, handles a punch like a conductor and punches for the date and the amount. This new style of money order will be both convenient and popular and will probably go into effect about September next.

The Pittsburg Iron Manufacturers had a settlement with their workmen, and made an advance of fifty cents on a ton to the laborer. The new rates took effect on June 1st, and nearly all the workmen commenced anew. This concession of the manufacturers has made a boom in business all over. It is an indication that the iron men have anticipation of large orders in the future or they would not have consented to the raise. Pittsburg is the great iron center of America, and with such bright prospects in view for that city will give new impetus to manufacturers all over the country. Many thousand men are now busily at work, with the hope of so continuing for some time in the future.

As appears from the report of the closing hours of the Legislature no apportionment bills have been passed. This is the result of the obstinacy of a republican senate which would not permit the passage of any of these bills unless the lion's share was given to their party, coupled with a desire on the part of some members of both parties, to force an extra session on account of the pay there is in it. There is no satisfactory reason that can be given why the several apportionments were not made, as the Legislature has been in session five months.

OF INTEREST TO FIREMEN.—At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the State Firemen's Association, held in Allentown recently, it was recommended that the second day of the meeting of the State convention at Scranton, next September, be set apart for the exhibition of fire apparatus and supplies. An invitation was extended to the Veteran Firemen's Association, of Allegheny, headquarters at Pittsburg, to participate in the proceedings of the next convention. A communication was received from the Veteran Firemen's Association of Phila., that it would attend the convention with at least three hundred men.

Items from Jackson and Vicinity.

The prospects at the present are for the best crop of wheat we have ever had.

Frank Derr finished planting corn to day (Tuesday). As several more of our farmers finished only a few days since he will not be far behind when husking time comes.

Alfred M. Stevens, our enterprising lumberman, has his mill started again on the Dribelbis tract of timber. Those wanting anything in his line will do well to call on him.

W. L. Parks is making arrangements to build a new barn.

E. J. Cole is running his shingle and lath mill to its fullest capacity.

Elder C. W. Cooper, of Millville, preached to a good audience in the Christian chapel in Lower Jackson last Sunday. He has an appointment at the same place on Friday evening next.

Jack, our enterprising merchant, and G. W., the present Jury Commissioner, concluded on a couple of days' recreation last week and started to the head waters of Fishingcreek on a fishing excursion, in anticipation of capturing many speckled beauties. After partaking of the hospitalities of mine host at the Hess stand, on Friday morning started for the head waters of Painter Run. We don't know how much time they spent in fishing, but we are informed that if they had succeeded in capturing ninety-three more they would have had just one hundred.

As the first Monday of June is the end of the fiscal school year, we noticed directors and auditors on their way yesterday to annual place of meeting (Waller) to balance up accounts. Jackson's finances are said to be well managed, the township is out of debt and its orders are cashed on presentation.

The people of the upper end of the county are feeling good, generally, in anticipation that the much talked-of Fishingcreek railroad will now be built. We hope it may be so, and that what has heretofore been the lair of wild animals may be opened to a permanent traffic by that great civilizer—the locomotive.

STAR OF THE NORTH.

Stillwater Jottings.

"The rabble gather 'round the man of news,
And listen with their mouths wide open; some
Tell, some hear, some judge of news, some make it,
And he that lies most loud, is most believed."

Thomas Pealer and wife, of Renova, are visiting relatives and friends in this community.

J. D. McHenry, who has been dangerously ill, is recovering.

The new buildings in Stillwater will, when finished, make quite an imposing appearance, and add much to the beauty of the "city."

Everybody is talking "railroad" again, and all feel quite sanguine of its success this time. It is "a consummation devoutly to be wished," and we trust that all our citizens who are not "old fossils" will give it the necessary aid and encouragement. Indeed there is no doubt but all men of public spirit and enterprise will do so, and if there be any others they should be handed over to some historical association as relics of the past.

Fishermen are numerous—fishing good, but the fish "aren't thar." There has been no large catch; however, the writer can report one that measured sixteen and one-fourth inches. Did not weigh it, but it was a heavy weight.

Corn planting seems to be pretty well over—that planted early is up, but mostly of the yellow kind. The cool weather may account for it.

Prospects for fruit are fine. Hard cider next winter.

Hon. E. J. McHenry mends slowly—is able to ride out a little.

Our valley is now perfectly lovely in its new Spring dress with the beautiful waving grain and pretty flowers and handsome women.

There is no more desirable place to be found to spend a week or two pleasantly than here. Dame Rumor has it that our Governor is coming here to rest up and trout fish for awhile. Well, he can fish to his heart's content and if he don't catch any, he can admire the beautiful scenery in our mountains.

Herbert M. Hess and Kate E. Davis, both of Sugarloaf, slipped into the matrimonial halter on the 24th of May. D. M. Kinter tied the knot at the house of the bride's father, Josh. Davis. May they ever eat and drink at the fount of matrimonial bliss.

Licenses.

Judge Elwell made the following remarks at Danville last week when granting licenses:

"Tavernkeepers will all recollect that their bondsmen as well as themselves are liable for a violation of the law to a penalty which may run up to the sum of two thousand dollars, and the bondsmen will see that they are interested in having their principal keep within the law. This penalty is besides the imprisonment that may be imposed as part of the punishment. There is still another hold which the court has upon licenses, and that is the power to revoke the license granted; and this we are disposed to do whenever there is made known to us a violation of the law. And we wish it to be understood that the evidence which would justify the court in taking away license need not be such as would be required to convict of the offense upon a trial before a jury. It is sometimes almost impossible in a criminal prosecution to prove the charge laid in the indictment. If, for example, on a Sunday, persons are seen hanging about a place where liquor is sold, going in or coming out at a front or a back door, we will take it as sufficient evidence that they obtained liquor at that place on that day. We have so held in Columbia county, and have revoked licenses in cases where that kind of evidence was all that was exhibited before us.

Persons who are licensed obtain a monopoly in a dangerous business, and it is therefore necessary that they should take special care to observe and obey the law, which is plain and with which every licensee should make himself familiar. We all know that more or less of the disturbances in a community occur around saloons, sometimes in hotels, but more generally in or about saloons. Even though licenses are disposed to maintain order in and about their establishments, if they are unable to do so there is no other way for the preservation of the public peace than for the court to revoke the license. We do not intend to be more stringent than the law (these licenses are granted under the law); but we desire to have it understood that we mean to maintain the law and compel him who receives a license to keep within the line of his privilege as defined by the statutes under which the license is granted—not only with reference to the prohibitions contained in the statutes (as against selling on Sunday, or election day, or to minors or known inebriates) but also with reference to their positive requirements (as beds, &c.,) for the accommodation of the traveling public. The law must be obeyed in all points, and a violation clearly shown in any point is a sufficient ground for revocation of license.

The tenth annual Inter-State picnic and exhibition under the auspices of the Patrons of Husbandry of Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia, New Jersey and Delaware will open at Williams' Grove, Cumberland county, Pa., on Monday, August 20, 1883, and continue until Saturday, August 25th. Excursion rates at reduced fare will be arranged over all the principal roads in Pennsylvania and adjoining States. Agricultural and scientific addresses, by prominent farmers and statesmen, will be delivered on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Friday, 24th, will be "Editors' Day," and many of the most prominent newspaper men in the country will be present on that day. Manufacturers of agricultural and domestic implements and machinery, and breeders of good stock will do well to make note of this exhibition. Last year over fifty thousand farmers, representing fourteen States, attended this gathering; and from present indications the number will be much greater this year. Over two hundred manufacturers of agricultural implements, and a large number of raisers of fine stock have already made application for space for exhibition. Members of the Order of Patrons of Husbandry, and their families and friends, may be supplied with tents on the grounds by making early application. Circulars, giving full details of the arrangements, will be issued by July 1st. For further particulars address,

R. H. THOMAS,
Manager Inter-State Picnic and Exhibition,
Mechanicsburg, Pa.

ORANGE TOWNSHIP, May 29th 1883

Editors of COLUMBIAN, Sirs:

Among the Orangeville items of May 17th, published in the Republican of the above date I find a communication on the supervisor of the southern end of the township stating that "at the recent election Mr. B. Frank Bartch was duly elected though he said he did not desire it, Now the facts are these. It was not Mr. Bartch who did not desire the office but some of the busy men of the village who desired his resignation and who went to see him for that purpose.

Last year E. B. Johnson was elected supervisor. We, the tax payers and road workers were willing to give him a fair trial though we knew at the time that he was not capable of engaging in any other business than a laborer. After Mr. Bartch had taken the oath of office and had given the required bonds some of the bright lights of this ring in the village conceived the idea of persuading Mr. Bartch to resign in order to have Johnson appointed.

For this purpose a man owning little or no real estate, whose strength like Samson's lies in the length of his hair, called to his aid Doctors, Merchants and all the legal ability in the village to devise some way by which to thwart the majority of the voters of the township. The same correspondent says "all this trouble is brought about by some mean contemptible men who are jealous of seeing our roads in good condition and because the roads in the town were worked for once to the satisfaction of the heavy tax payers" particularly those who use their money to shave notes and exact usury.

"Independence, Texas, Sept. 20, 1882.

Gentlemen:

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Has been used in my household for three reasons:—

1st. To prevent falling out of the hair.
2d. To prevent too rapid change of color.
3d. As a dressing.

It has given entire satisfaction in every instance. Yours respectfully,

WM. CAREY CRANE."

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is entirely free from uncleanly, dangerous, or injurious substances. It prevents the hair from turning gray, restores gray hair to its original color, prevents baldness, preserves the hair and promotes its growth, cures dandruff and all diseases of the hair and scalp, and is, at the same time, a very superior and desirable dressing.

According to the statement the county paid about $440 for work done at the court house and jail last year. Sheriff Mourey offers to contract for the same work at $360 a year. The commissioners should put this matter in his hands, as it would not only be a saving to the county but no question as to the responsibility for escapes could hereafter arise.

Charles Hamilton was arrested by Constable Woodward on Friday, charged with stealing chickens. He had a hearing before J. M. Clark, Esq., and was committed to jail in default of bail. According to the evidence he stole chickens of L. Runyan, W. Webb, W. Rawlings, and others, and sold them in town. He has been doing a wholesale business.

We are informed that the county has paid somebody $75 for work done in saving the bridge near the paper mill at Catawissa at the time of the fire. As this bridge is kept up by the county more for the benefit of Catawissa people than anybody else, they ought to have been willing to protect it for nothing. So far as we can learn this payment was unwarranted, and ought not to be allowed in the next annual settlement.

At Danville court last week Alexander Frame, convicted of robbery, was sentenced to two years' imprisonment in the Eastern penitentiary. John Engle will serve three months in the county jail for assault and battery on his father-in-law, a deaf mute. The commissioners were severely reprimanded for failing to supply the court house with water after the strong recommendations by five successive grand juries.

The names of the gentlemen who sailed in the boats on a pleasure excursion were R. S. Oliver, and B. Fernon. They dined at the Exchange on Friday and shipped their boats back by rail from this point. The men were badly sunburned and had enough of the sport ween they reached here.

James Terwilliger of Lightstreet was arrested by Constable Woodward on Friday last on a warrant issued by J. D. Bodine, Esq., of Mainville, charging him with robbing Levi Michael on the river hill a few weeks ago. Terwilliger gave bail in $500 before H. G. Creveling, Esq., at Espy, for a hearing before Esquire Bodine at Mainville on Thursday morning. We go to press too soon to report any of the testimony. The name of Charles McDowell was on the warrant but as he was out of the county, living at McVeytown, Mifflin county, a despatch was sent there to hold him, and Constable Woodward went after him on Monday. He returned on Tuesday morning and McDowell gave bail for a hearing.

The Bloomsburg Band is an organization of which the town may well feel proud. As a general thing brass bands are short lived, there being no pay in the work done, and oftentimes not many thanks. The present band has lasted longer than any similar organization in the town or county, and is now upon a permanent basis. Its members are interested in their work, and meetings are held regularly twice a week for practice. Under the efficient leadership of Prof. Brooks the band has made wonderful progress, and they now master a number of difficult selections, that but few country bands would attempt to play. The band renders services to the public on public occasions gratuitously, and they give open air concerts during the summer. Now in return the public should show some appreciation, and it can be done in no better way than by contributing towards the purchase of new uniforms, which are badly needed. If the boys ask for money give liberally: if they have a festival or concert patronize them. They deserve it.

Greenwood Institute.

ROHRSBURG, Pa., May 26th, 1883.

Institute was called to order, pursuant to appointment by the president, C. M. Blaker.

Teachers present at roll call, B. Follmer, F. Bogart, W. Rote, M. Stackhouse and Hannah Patterson. In the absence of the Secretary G. W. Utt was appointed Secretary pro tem. After a very creditable exhibition by pupils of Mr. Follmer's, (Rohrsburg), school Mr. Rote gave his mode of teaching history by the "topical plan." Miss Patterson gave a pleasant and instructive lesson on letter writing. In illustration of the same subject the President called up a small class of boys and girls and drilled them in the work of letter writing in a happy manner, fully demonstrating the theory of Miss Patterson. The President then gave his usual talk to the teachers.

Sudden Death.

On last Friday evening June 1st, about 11 o'clock, Mr. M. E. Caswell, one of the partners in the firm of Caswell Bros. & Co., died suddenly. He died of a severe congestive chill. He was the youngest of eight brothers and the first one to be separated. He was 31 yrs, 3 mos, and 15 days old. Seven brothers one sister and his father survive him. He leaves a wife and little boy, who have the sympathy of the community in their sad bereavement. Mr. Caswell was the boss finisher in the woolen mills and thoroughly understood his part of the work. The mills were just about being operated very successfully, and for the firm to lose so valuable a partner and brother, is a sad loss indeed. During his short stay, Mark, as he was commonly called, made many friends, who were startled at his sudden demise. The funeral took place at his late residence on West street, on Tuesday morning at ten o'clock in charge of Revs. Flickinger, of Shamokin, and Manhart, of Bloomsburg. There was a large gathering of friends. The body was taken to Jersey Shore and buried alongside his mother.

The Sequel to a Dream.

"One of the most remarkable occurrences I ever heard of was related to me recently," remarked a State-street broker. I was told by a leading City Hall official, whose trustworthiness is undoubted, that a daughter of the late Harvey Jewell (who was so well and favorably known in Boston in legal and business circles, and was a brother of the late Marshall Jewell) had recently a very queer and unusual experience, and one calculated to make a deep impression upon the strongest mind. Some weeks ago she had a dream in which she distinctly saw an undertaker drive up to her residence with a hearse. He was a peculiar-looking man. His queerly-shaped nose, which looked as if it had been broken and was twisted to one side, gave his countenance an expression which would have made indentification easy and certain. He came directly toward her, and he said: 'Are you ready?' she suddenly awoke. The dream seemed a peculiar one, but did not attract much attention in the household until, a few days or a week later it was repeated with exactly the same characteristics, down to the 'Are you ready?' and the awakening. And now comes the strangest part of the story. Some little time afterward the young lady was visiting in Cincinnati and went to an apartment hotel to call upon a friend. She stepped into the elavator with the others, and was startled to hear 'Are you ready?' from the man in charge. She was still more startled on looking around and beholding the exact picture of the man of the dream, even to the misshapen nose. It made such an impression upon her mind that she requested to be let out of the elevator at the first landing. She stepped out, and the other occupants went out at the next landing, and the man remained. The elevator machinery gave out; suddenly the car went up and down, and the man was instantly killed. —Boston Globe.

Budding.

Budding of trees is very simple and much less trouble than grafting, but it can scarcely be described how to do it sufficiently well to enable one to perform it successfully. The season for the purpose is June and July, when the new buds are fully developed. With a sharp knife remove a bud carefully by inserting the knife about an inch above the bud and passing it down about an inch below the bud, taking at the bud a little of the wood. Remove it with an ivory, horn, or very smoothly prepared wooden knife, from the stock without injury. Then make a cut in the stock where the bud is desired to grow, about three fourths the length of the removed bud, make a cross slit near the top of the other slit, thus, †, then raise carefully up the bark at the sides, and less at the top and bottom, place the bud in it, and wrap round it closely some brasswood or suitable paper will answer, tied with cotton yarn, and it is done. The stock from which the bud is taken and the one on which it is placed, should be from three-fourth to an inch and a half in diameter, and both nearly the same size.

A half column directions, as we notice in some journals, as to how budding is to be done, is only confusing and will not serve to impart the information so well as this brief account. It is better, however, to see it done, and two minutes ought to be long enough to teach one all about it.

Planting by Signs.

Cabbage seed should be sown when the sign is in the head Plant potatoes in a down sign toward the feet. Plant beet and radish seed when the sign is in the leg, and onions when the sign in the light of the moon, and peas when the moon is full. Plant melon and cucumber seed when the sign is in the arms, but not in the blossom.

Plant corn and sow wheat in the light of the moon. Sow clover seed in a down sign.

Make soap in the light of the March moon. Kill hogs on the increase of the moon; if on the decrease the meat cooks away. Many say that a light feed before butchering will prevent this. There is always frost when the moon changes with the sign in the head.

This is called superstition, but that charge will not refute the arguments of astrologers. They ask, if the moon has an influence on inorganic bodies, why not on organic? If on the tides, why not not on vegetable growth?

The fact that most vegetables that grow down should be planted in the down sign, and those that grow up in an up sign looks as if the time for planting were made to correspond with the signs.—Exchange.

Hints for Husbandmen.

Germantown Telegraph.

A gentleman told us the other day that last year he had constantly for several months green peas upon his table of his own raising, and that they lost nothing of their deliciousness. There is no difficulty in this, if gardeners are instructed to go steadily on with their plantings through the season; but few will do it on their own account, as it adds to their labor. The way, however, to raise the finest quality of peas is, after the first sowings, to plant them deep and mulch them, so that the soil they root in is always cool and moist. In the careless manner in which peas are frequently cultivated, they have very little flavor and delicacy.

It is so with raising what is called the snapshort. They are seldom planted deep enough, and as a consequence have no more flavor than a piece of Indian rubber, and about as tough. But the beans planted in September, and in due time are for sale in our markets, are really delicious in flavor and fairly melt in the mouth. This is the result of cool soil. But were these beans planted three or four inches deep, as we have more than once suggested, throughout the season, and mulched in the hottest portion of it, we could have, as with the peas, these vegetables at all times up to November in perfection.

One of the best protected clases in this country are the gunners. Game is reserved for them by natural right, and the robin, pewit, partridge, wren, bluebird, woodpecker or humming bird—anything that has feathers—must hang lifeless at the side of the sportsman as evidence of his skill. In the mean time farmers are asking better methods of destroying insects, and wonder why they are more numerous than formerly. It is all wrong, this matter of allowing our game birds to breed at one period merely to be mercilessly slaughtered at another. The birds are not too many at any time.

A Malarial Victim.

THE TRYING EXPERIENCE OF A PROMINENT MINISTER IN THE TROPICS AND AT THE NORTH.

TO THE EDITOR:

The following circumstances, drawn from my personal experience, are so important and really remarkable that I have felt called upon to make them public. The truth can be amply verified:

In 1875 I moved from Canton, St. Lawrence county. N. Y., to Florida, which state I intended to make my future residence. I purchased a home on the banks of the St. John's river and settled down as I thought, for life. The summer following the first winter I was conscious of a most peculiar sensations which seemed to be the accompaniment of a change of climate. I felt a sinking at the pit of my stomach accompanied by occasional dizziness and nausea. My head ached. My limbs pained me and I had an oppressive sense of weariness. I had a thirst for acids and my appetite was weak and uncertain. My digestion was impaired and my food did not assimilate. At first I imagined it was the effort of nature to become acclimated and so I thought little of it. But my troubles increased until I became restless and feverish and the physicians informed me I was suffering from malarial fever. This continued in spite of all the best physicians could do so and I kept growing steadily worse. In the year 1880 my physicians informed me a change of climate was absolutely necessary—that I could not survive another summer in the south. I determined to return north, but not to the extreme portion, so I took up my residence in Upper Sandusky in Central Ohio. The change did not work the desired cure and I again consulted physicians. I found they were unable to effect a permanent cure, and when the extreme warm weather of summer came on I grew so much worse that I gave up all hope. At that time I was suffering terribly. How badly, only those who can appreciate who have contracted malarial disease in tropical regions. It seemed as if death would be a relief greater than any other blessing. But notwithstanding all this, I am happy to state that I am to-day a perfectly well and healthy man. How I came to recover so remarkably can be understood from the following card voluntarily published by me in the Sandusky, O. Republican, entitled:

HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE.

EDITORS REPUBLICAN: During my recent visit to Upper Sandusky, so many inquiries were made relative to what medicine, or course of treatment had brought such a marked change in my system, I feel it to be due to the proprietors and to the public to state that Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure accomplished for me what other medicines and physicians had failed to do. The malarial poison which had worked its way ao thoroughly through my system during my five years residence in Florida had brought me to the verge of the grave, and physicians had pronounced my case incurable; but that is not to be wondered at, as it was undoubtedly one of the worst on record. Hough Brothers, of your city induced me to try a few bottles. So marked was the change after four week's trial that I continued its use, and now, after three month's, the cure is complete. This is not written for the benefit of Warner & Co., but for the public, and especially for any person troubled with malaria or bilious attacks."

Such is the statement I made, without solicitation, after my recovery, and such I stand by at the present moment. I am convinced that Warner's Safe Cure is all it is claimed to be, and as such deserves the great favor it has received. A remedy which can cure the severest case of tropical malaria of five year's standing certainly cannot fail to cure those minor malarial troubles which are so prevalent and yet so serious.

ALFRED DAY.

Pumpkins Among Corn.

Although some farmers reject the long and well-sustained practice of planting pumpkin seed among the corn, on the ground that it detracts as much from the corn product as in the profits it adds to the stock of provender, still it is the general method pursued to get a crop of pumpkins. Besides, from our own experience and observation we have had and seen as good crops of corn with as without the pumpkins. It may appear at first thought as if the land could not sustain two full crops of anything; but this is not so in all cases, as in those where the two crops do not require the same manurial stimulants, inasmuch as a portion at least that one will take up will not be required by the other. Of course it requires very good land to raise pumpkins; but even in this case, though an extra crop of manure may be needed to be applied to the corn ground where pumpkins are to be planted, there will be a saving in the element of time, and instead of one crop from the land in a year, we gather two. The objection that some make, that the vines shade the ground while the ground requires all the heat it can get, is not well founded, as the corn itself furnishes perfect shade without the vines, which really canadd little more to injure the crop. It is far more probable that the objectors to this double crop who fail in getting all they want, owe their lack of success to poor land, or negligent cultivation, and we suggest that they should change their system by manuring and cultivating more, and then wait and see.—Germantown Telegraph.

"Rum, Tobacco and the Young.

The excessive use of tobacco by immature youth, especially in the form of the seductive cigarette, is a growing evil. Even those who believe that a moderate use of tobacco, so far from being an evil, is beneficial, or at the wost, harmless, have no hesitation in condemning the habit of sapping their brains and their vitality by those addicted to the almost constant consumption of cigarettes. Moreover, the disgusting practices connected with the use of tobacco—smoking when it is inoffensive to those who do not like it, and making pig styes of pavements, floors, cars, theatres and other public places, by indecent spitting, ought to be taken in hand and corrected by a wholesome public opinion and by law wherever practicable. On these points there is a hearty agreement among large numbers of the consumers of tobacco, as well as those who abstain from it.—Detroit Free Pres.

Tramps are giving Lock Haven a wide berth since the city authorities have begun to put them to work breaking stone.

Eggs may be kept in good order for six months by dipping them into warm tallow, and after they cool packing them in saw dust; cover with saw dust and make as nearly air-tight as possible, and put away in a dry, cool place.

The Redemption and Cancellation of Stamps, etc.

The commissioners of internal revenue Friday, June 1st, issued a circular supplementary to cirlcular No. 259 in regard to the redemption and cancellation of stamps imprinted on checks, drafts, etc. It provides that imprinted checks and drafts may be sent to the internal revenue bureau at once instead of from July next, as originally intended. Such as are received will be cancelled and returned if possible by July first. They may be presented in sheets or bound in books and will be returned in the same condition. Blanks which have been compressed into blocks or pads must be separated before presentation. The cancelled stamps will be designed by the imprinted words "stamp redeemeemed." Request for cancellation in any other form or at any place except the office of the comissioner of internal revenue will not be considered. Claims should be made on a form eighty-one copies of which will be furnished upon application, and the cases will be taken up in the order of their receipt. If the claim in any case is complete the stamps accompanying it will be cancelled at once. If it is not complete, the stamps will be laid aside until all and additional satisfactory evidence is received.

For the Family Scrap Book.

Ripe tomatoes will remove ink or other stains from the hands.

Kerosene will soften leather hardened by water, and render it as pliable as new.

To heal cut fingers with rapidity wrap them in a cloth saturated with rum-water.

To keep tinware nice and bright scour it every two or three weeks with finely-sifted coal ashes.

To clean willow furniture use salt and water, and apply with a course brush, and dry thoroughly.

Machine grease may be removed from wash goods by dipping the fabric in cold rain-water and soda.

To remove tar rub thoroughly with clean lard, and then wash with soap and warm water. This may be applied to either the hands or clothing.

Kitchen tables may be made as white as snow if washed with hard soap and wood ashes. Floors look best scrubbed with cold water, soap and wood ashes.

Tea stains and many fruit stains may be removed with boiling water; pour the water through the stain in order to prevent it from spreading through the material.

To make good starch, mix with cold water and add boiling water until it thickens; then add a desert spoon of sugar and a small piece of butter. This makes a stiff and glossy finish equal to new.

A few drops of hartshorn put into a little water will clean a hair brush nicely. If very dirty, use a little soap also. After cleaning rinse in clean water, tie a string around the handle, and hang it up to dry.

A LA MODE BEEF.—Here is the most sensible recipe for beef a la mode it has been my good fortune to use. Take three pounds of Irish beef, remove all the fat and gristle; mix some cloves, mace, allspice, black pepper, and a little cayenne with a little less than a pint of vinegar, the quantity of spice to be determined by your taste—a tablespoon ful of each, with the exception of the cayenne is sufficient. Put the meat in a porcelain kettle, and pour vinegar and spices over it, and a pint of sour stock. It is considered by some cooks a great addition to cut thin slices of bacon and lay them over the meat. Cover the kettle, and let the beef cook slowly till perfectly tender. This may be served cold, or hot, and with vegetable or without.

A New York man who sued a railroad for killing his cow has lost his case. The railroad company proved by seventeen witnesses that the schedule of the road was pasted on the fence right where the cow could see it, and, besides, that the engineer winked four times at it, but the reckless animal would not take the hint.—Pittsburg Telegraph.

Oh, My Back!

That's a common expression and has a world of meaning. How much suffering is summed up in it.

The singular thing about it is, that pain in the back is occasioned by so many things. May be caused by kidney disease, liver complaint, consumption, cold, rheumatism, dyspepsia, overwork, nervous debility, &c.

Whatever the cause, don't neglect it. Something is wrong and needs prompt attention. No medicine has yet been discovered that will so quickly and surely cure such diseases as BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, and it does this by commencing at the foundation, and making the blood pure and rich.

Logansport, Ind. Dec. 1, 1880.

For a long time I have been a sufferer from stomach and kidney disease. My appetite was very poor and the very small amount I did eat disagreed with me. I was annoyed very much from non-retention of urine. I tried many remedies with no success, until I used Brown's Iron Bitters. Since I used that my stomach does not bother me any. My appetite is simply immense. My kidney trouble is no more, and my general health is such, that I feel like a new man. After the use of Brown's Iron Bitters for one month, I have gained twenty pounds in weight. O. B. BASSETT.

Leading physicians and clergymen use and recommend BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. It has cured others suffering as you are, and it will cure you.
